

Thank you for considering this LINKtivity for your classroom, but before you make a decision - you should know that you can get access to this LINKtivity + PLUS our entire library for about the same price as a single LINKtivity!

The results are in: Teachers LOVE LINKtivities... and want more! So, we've made it SUPER easy and cost effective for you to access any and ALL of our LINKtivities inside our LINKtivity Learning membership option! Instead of purchasing just ONE LINKtivity - why not get access to ALL of them... for about the SAME PRICE!

INSIDE THE MEMBERSHIP YOU'LL HAVE UNLIMITED ACCESS TO:

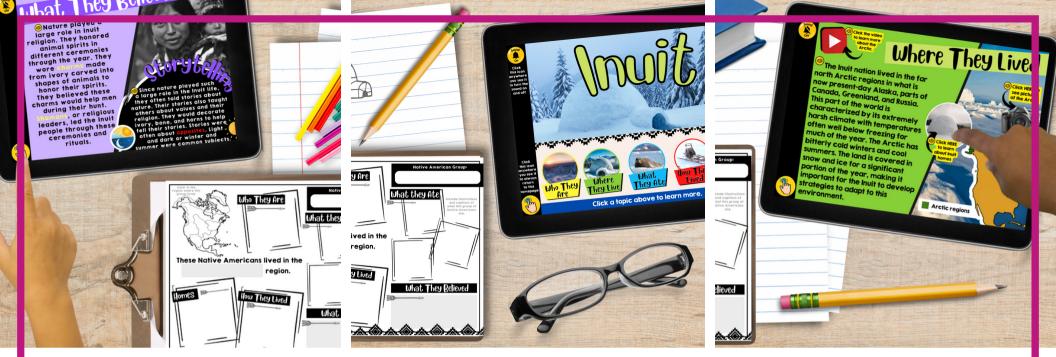

- The entire growing LINKtivity® library inside the Membership (LINKtivities for all content areas)
- ALL future LINKtivities to be added to the membership (new releases each month!)
- Teacher guides to help you set up each LINKtivity® successfully in your classroom
 - Student resources that go along with each LINKtivity (printable OR digital)

Kid-friendly rubrics and answer keys for each LINKtivity®

In The Inuit LINKtivity, students will dive into the rich culture of these Native Americans. With videos, graphics, audio, and more, they'll uncover the essence of the Inuit people - their North American habitats, unique homes, foods they ate, daily routines, beliefs, and the vital role of storytelling in shaping their worldview.

- More Sample Slides

and built tools and equipment needed for hunting such as kayaks and sleds. Women would create clothing including warm coats called parkas, along with boats, boots, and mittens. Clothing was made of caribou, fox, polar bear, and seal skins and fur. Women and girls also cooked meals for their families.

Inuit families had both summer and winter homes due to the intense climate. During the warmer months, they used animal skins to make tents. In the winter, they would escape the frigid winds by digging into the hillside with rocks and whalebones to build their homes in the earth. They would also construct igloos, which are shelters made from blocks of snow and ice. These structures provided insulation against the cold and protection from the strong winds.

The Inuit nation lived in the far north Arctic regions in what is now present-day Alaska, parts of Canada, Greenland, and Russia. This part of the world is characterized by its extremely harsh climate with temperatures often well below freezing for much of the year. The Arctic has bitterly cold winters and cool summers. The land is covered in snow and ice for a significant portion of the year, making it important for the Inuit to develop strategies to adapt to this environment.

ick HERE

Arctic regions

Perfect for English language learners or students who could use a little extra support!

This LINKtivity is provided with

SUPPORT

Where They Live The Inuit nation lived in the far north Arctic regions in what is now present-day Alaska, parts of Canada, Greenland, and Russia. This part of the world is characterized by its extremely harsh climate with temperatures often well below freezing for much of the year. The Arctic has bitterly cold winters and cool summers. The land is covered in snow and ice for a significant portion of the year, making it important for the Inuit to develop strategies to adapt to this environment. Im

Click HERE

to learn about Inuit

homes

Arctic regions

lick the video to learn more about the Arctic.

Printable & Digital Student Recording Sheet

Printable Recording Sheet for LINKtivity

